

Contributors

Felipe Gustavo Koch Buttelli, Florianópolis, Brazil, is a Postdoctoral Researcher in the Theology and Development Programme, University of KwaZulu-Natal. He is a Brazilian Lutheran Theologian, and has a master's degree in Practical Theology and a Doctorate in Systematic Theology from the Faculties EST, in Brazil. Developed part of his PhD research at the Stellenbosch Theological Faculty in South Africa, Researching on the relation between Liberation and Public Theologies in the contexts of Brazil and South Africa. He has a first postdoc in Decolonial Theology at Faculties EST. He is currently on his second postdoctoral research at the Theology and Development Programme of UKZN, in which he is investigating the role of social movements as locus and agent for systematic theology. Activist for the rights of the Palestinians. Contact details: felipebuttelli@yahoo.com.br

Nuraan Davids is an Associate Professor of Philosophy of Education, and the Chairperson of the Department of Education Policy Studies in the Faculty of Education at Stellenbosch University. Her research interests include Democratic Citizenship Education; Islamic Philosophy of Education; and Ethics in education. She is an Associate Editor of the South African Journal of Higher Education, an Editorial Board Member of Ethics and Education, and an Advisory Board Member of Journal on Education in Muslim Societies. She is the recipient of a number of research and teaching awards, which includes the NRF Research Excellence Award for Female Emerging Researcher (2015); the Stellenbosch University Distinguished Teacher Award (2017); and the CHE/HELTASA National Excellence in Teaching and Learning Commendation (2017). She is the author of over 80 accredited articles and book chapters. Her list of international books include: Women, Cosmopolitanism, and Islamic Education: On the Virtues of Education and Belonging (2013, New York & London: Peter Lang Publishing); Citizenship Education and Violence in Schools: On Disrupted Potentialities and Becoming (with Y. Waghid, 2013, Rotterdam/Boston/Taipei: Sense Publishers); Ethical Dimensions of Muslim Education (with Y. Waghid, 2016, New York & London: Palgrave Macmillan); Educational Leadership-in-becoming: On the Potential of Leadership in Action (with Y. Waghid, 2106, New York & London: Routledge); Philosophy and Education as Action: Implications for Teacher Education (with Y. Waghid, 2017, Lanham, MD (US): Rowman & Littlefield – Lexington Series); Tolerance and Dissent within Education: On Cultivating Debate and Understanding (with Y. Waghid, 2017, New York & London: Palgrave MacMillan). Contact details: nur@sun.ac.za

Simon Goldstone is Head: Digitally Enhanced Learning, Teaching & Assessment, Embury. He has eighteen years' experience in Software and Web Development, including process re-engineering and design, e-commerce, database management and reporting for Small-to-Medium Enterprises, Industry and Government clients (nationally and abroad) with the focus on solutions for Higher Education. He also has nine years' experience in Academic Development, focusing on Technology-enabled Teaching and Learning, Blended Learning and e-Assessment, including lecturing and facilitation, training, material development, consultation, solution provision and research; sixteen combined years' experience in sound design (recording, production, mixing, mastering and reproduction for stage, screen, tape and optical media and web) and video production (recording, editing, special-effects design and authoring). His qualifications are BTech (Information Technology) 2002; and MTech (Information Technology) currently completing, with specialised key skills sets in System Analysis, Solution Design, Web Development, Strategic Consulting, and Programme Delivery. Contact details: SimonG@embury.ac.za)

Christopher Gumbi is currently employed by the Department of Correctional Services in Tshwane. Prior to that he was a research assistant and MA (Criminology) student at the University of Limpopo, Mankweng, Polokwane (South Africa), serving under the leadership of Prof Cornelis Roelofse. His Masters dissertation in Criminology focused on the motivational factors for farm attacks and its consequential injurious phenomena; and examined such crimes committed in parts of Limpopo and Mpumalanga between 2005 and 2015. Contact details p.a.: Dr. Ian Saunderson, ian.saunderson@ul.ac.za

Cathy M. Haselau (PhD) is a Social worker in private practice, Glenwood, Durban. Her main interests are Marital and Family Therapy; student counselling; individual counselling; as well as couple, family, and group counselling; including counselling skills training in all these areas. She is also a certified Imago Therapist. Contact details: cathyhaselau@mweb.co.za

Contributors

Janet Jarvis (PhD Religion Education) serves on the Management Team in the School of Education, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. She is the Cluster Leader: Social Sciences Education and lectures in Life Orientation Education in both undergraduate and post-graduate programmes. She holds a Masters (cum laude) from Stellenbosch University and a Doctoral degree from North West University (Potchefstroom). Her research interest is teacher identity, Religion Education and gender equality. She has presented papers at both national and international conferences and has published several papers in this field. She is currently working collaboratively with colleagues in Norway and also at several South African Higher Education Institutions. She is a member of the Contributors 372 following bodies: South African Universities Physical Education Association (SAUPEA); Human Rights in Education (HRiED); and ASRSA – Association for Religious Studies in South Africa (ASRSA). Contact details: jarvisj@ukzn.ac.za

Hermien Johannes (PhD) is Instructional designer, HEADS, Nelson Mandela University, Port Elizabeth. She has thirty years' experience in a variety of higher educational settings, which includes academic and teaching development; e-Assessment; instructional, material and learning design; managing, planning, organising and monitoring e-Learning and blended learning activities; as well as collaborative- project-based- and specialised research in Higher Educational contexts. She has twenty years' experience as an instructional / learning designer for curriculum development, including the Carpe Diem group design for programmes and modules. Contact details: Hermien.johannes@mandela.ac.za

Madhu Kasiram is an Emeritus Professor in Social Work, University of Kwa-Zulu-Natal, Durban. She has published widely, both internationally and continentally. Her main interests are, postgraduate promotion; marital and family therapy; and marginalisation and xenophobia. Contact details: rdkasiram@gmail.com

Chammah J. Kaunda (PhD) Professor in World Christianity, College of Theology/ United Graduate School of Theology, Yonsei University, South

Korea. Kaunda has authored more than 70 peer reviewed journal articles and book chapters, published both locally and internationally within World Christianity, African Theologies, African Pentecostalism, African Religions, Ecumenical Theology and Missiology. His recent publications include ‘The Nation that Fears God Prospers’: Zambian Pentecostalism and Politics (Fortress, 2018); He co-edited, Anthology of African Christianity (Regnum Books International, 2016; Cluster Publications, 2016) and Who’s an African? (Fortress/ Lexington books, 2018).

Contact details: pastorchammah@gmail.com

Mutale Mulenga Kaunda (PhD Gender and Religion), is an independent researcher currently. Her research focus is on issues regarding African women marriage rites, gender, sexualities, African women and religion and African women's careers and ageing. Contact details: mutalemkaunda@gmail.com

Oscar Koopman (PhD) is a Senior Lecturer in Chemistry in the Faculty of Education at the Cape Peninsula University of Technology in Cape Town, South Africa. His primary area of research focusses on phenomenology, science and curriculum issues. Dr Koopman is also the author of two monographs entitled Science Education and Curriculum in South Africa published by Palgrave MacMillan and Science Education and Pedagogy in South Africa, published by Peter Lang. Dr Koopman has also published articles in both continental and international journals. Additionally, he received the global scholar award in 2019 from Brock University in Niagara, Canada where he also serves on the advisory board of the Teaching Nelson Mandela Project which advocates for the advancement of Human Rights. Contact details: koopmano@cput.ac.za

Jan Hendrik Kroeze is a Professor at the University of South Africa in the School of Computing. He was chair of the department from 2011 until 2017 and managed research, higher degrees and community engagement. He also managed CENSE, a former short learning programme centre in the School of Computing at Unisa. He has PhDs in Semitic Languages and Information Technology. During his academic career, Jan has published widely and has presented various conference papers on topics in both Hebrew linguistics and Information Systems. He is an NRF rated researcher. His current research focuses on IS theory and philosophy and Humanities-enriched Information

Contributors

Systems. Jan was the conference chair of SAICSIT 2012 and co-chair of a mini-track on transdisciplinary wisdom in IS in 2012 at AMCIS. Jan was also the first president of the Southern African Chapter of the AIS and the publications officer of the AIS SIGPhilosophy. He was the SAICSIT president from 2017 - 2019. Contact details: kroezjh@unisa.ac.za

Clint Le Bruyns is Director of the postgraduate Theology & Development Programme, and Senior Lecturer in Theology & Development within the School of Religion, Philosophy & Classics, at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. Having conducted studies at Cornerstone Christian College, University of South Africa, University of the Western Cape, Fuller Theological Seminary and Stellenbosch University, Dr Le Bruyns has served in various institutions including Pat Kelly Bible College, Cornerstone Christian College, Stellenbosch University and Eastern University. His major areas of expertise revolve around public theology, economic ethics, theology of work, ethical leadership, Paul Tillich, H Richard Niebuhr, kairos theologies, and the role of the church in development discourse and practice. In addition to the publication of many popular and scholarly articles, he co-edited two books: The Humanization of Globalization (Germany, 2008) and Ragbag Theologies (South Africa, 2009). He is currently co-editing a book project on Shifting Perspectives on Palestine-Israel. He is an active member within various professional theological and ethics societies, as well as on the editorial board of the International Journal of Public Theology, and Soma: An International Journal of Theological Discourses and Counter-Discourses. Contact details: lebruyns@ukzn.ac.za

Dr. Chrismi-Rinda Loth is a Research Fellow in the Department of South African Sign Language and Deaf Studies at the University of the Free State, Bloemfontein. Her research interests include sociolinguistics and language policy and planning with a focus on Linguistic Landscape Studies. Contact details: lothc@ufs.ac.za

David A. Pittaway is a Postdoctoral Scholar for the SARCHI Chair in Identities and Social Cohesion in Africa, Nelson Mandela University, Port Elizabeth, South Africa. After a decade and a half of studying and teaching in traditionally academic contexts, David transitioned to a rustic permaculture lifestyle in an attempt to tread more gently on what increasingly appears to be a planet wounded by myopic human attitudes and practices. He continued to teach part-time at the Nelson Mandela University, simultaneously completing a philosophical PhD study at the University of the Free State on a range of factors relevant to the broad topic of the ecological crisis. David is currently a National Research Foundation Post-doctorate fellow working under the banner of Identities and Social Cohesion in Africa. Contact details: pittaway@gmail.com

Cornelis Roelofse, PhD, late Research Professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Zululand till 2019. He was Head of Department of Criminology for a period exceeding 10 years and served as a full professor at the University of Limpopo, Mankweng, Polokwane (South Africa). Prior to his appointment at University of Limpopo, he served as Professor at University of Venda (UNIVEN), and also worked for the Department of Correctional Services. His main fields of scientific interests were Criminology, Criminal Justice and Community Policing. Professor Roelofse was well published with more than 50 continental and international publications to his name at the time of his passing, and will be sadly missed. Contact details: p.a. Dr. Ian Saunderson, ian.saunderson@ul.ac.za

Ian Saunderson, PhD, is currently the Program Coordinator (Communication Studies) at the University of Limpopo, Mankweng, Polokwane (South Africa), after being appointed in the position of Senior Lecturer in February 2015. Prior to this he served in various positions at the Walter Sisulu University in the Eastern Cape (ranging from Lecturer, Senior Lecturer and Head of Department) for a period of twelve years. He obtained his PhD from the University of Glasgow in Scotland (UK) in 2013. His PhD thesis was entitled “HIV/AIDS at a South African University: investigating the role of Walter Sisulu University’s prevention role players and student behavior at the Institute for Advanced Tooling” following an interest in HIV/AIDS research for a period of more than ten years. Other research interests include New Communication Technology, Advertising, Marketing as well as Quality Assurance in Education. Contact details: ian.saunderson@ul.ac.za

Lee-Shae Salma Scharnick-Udemans (PhD) is a Senior researcher, Faculty of Arts, University of the Western Cape. Lee graduated with a B. Soc Sci degree from the University of Cape Town in 2007. Her majors were in

Contributors

Religious Studies and Media Studies. She obtained a Bachelor of Social Science (Honours) in 2010 and obtained her Masters in Social Science in 2012 in the area of Religious Pluralism and Media, also at UCT. She obtained her PhD in 2016 at the age of 29 from the University of Cape Town. Trained in the study of religion and society, Lee researches, teaches and supervises in the area of religious diversity, pluralism, religion education, the political economy of religion, new religious movements, and the media. She is the Managing Editor of the Journal of the Study of Religion and the African Journal of Gender and Religion. Lee also serves as a media officer for the African Consortium for Religion and Law Studies. She has presented her work at several international conferences and forums, including Ethiopia, Morocco, England, Sweden, Denmark, and Germany. Contact details: lscharnickudemans@uwc.ac.za

Bob Travica is Associate Professor of Information Systems. He currently teaches in the I.H. Asper School of Business at The University of Manitoba in Canada. Bob completed Doctoral and Master's studies in the United States, and worked as academic, journalist, and software entrepreneur in North America, Latin America, and Europe. Bob also worked in the software industry, corporate communications, and journalism in Europe. In his research, Bob focuses on the informing view of organization, organizational evolution with information and communication technologies, information systems in the international context, big data, and philosophy of Information Systems. His specialty is model building from an interdisciplinary perspective. Bob has published close to forty academic articles and two books, and he is actively engaged in the academic editorship. Contact details:

Bob.Travica@umanitoba.ca

Izak van Zyl has an MA in Social Anthropology from the University of Stellenbosch (South Africa) and a PhD in Communication Science at the Università della Svizzera italiana, Switzerland. He is currently an Associate Professor of Transdisciplinary Studies at the Cape Peninsula University of Technology in South Africa. He has a strong publication record in the communication sciences. Izak's other research interests include digital anthropology and media, the philosophy of Information Systems, and design anthropology. Methodologically, he is interested in digital ethnography, participatory and meta-analytic approaches. Contact details:

VanZylIz@cput.ac.za