

Contributors

Marius Debonaire Mbetga is currently a Doctoral Candidate in Sociology at the University of the Western Cape. The area of study of his doctoral programme is Sociology of African Migrations and African Societies including Afrocentricity with a particular focus on socioeconomic integration and social exclusion in post-apartheid South Africa. He was granted a BA in German Studies in 1995 and a BA Honours in General Linguistics in 1997 at the University of Yaoundé I in Cameroon; a BA Honours in Linguistics and Communication Studies in 2012; and a Masters Degree in Sociology in 2015 at the University of the Western-Cape in South Africa. His Masters dissertation focused on xenophobia and the media with a particular focus on the representations of black ‘foreigners’. Contact details:

madibalanza@gmail.com

Fred Bidandi is a researcher interested in refugee studies, urban & public policy analysis, urban planning, migration and higher education. He holds a PhD in Public Administration, MPA, B.AD HONS & Dip in Marketing. He is currently research fellow at the Child & Family Studies unit, University of the Western-Cape. Contact details: bidandif@gmail.com

Nokuthula Cele is a lecturer in the Culture and Heritage Tourism Programme at the University of KwaZulu-Natal (UKZN), Howard College campus. She has a PhD degree in History from Michigan State University, USA. Before joining UKZN she taught for a year at Hope College, Michigan. Her research interests include mainly marine studies; culture and heritage studies; memory studies; human settlements; identity and gender. Contact details:

Celen1@ukzn.ac.za

Subashini Gordon is a PhD candidate in the discipline of Sociology at the

Contributors

University of KwaZulu-Natal (UKZN). Her doctoral thesis focuses on notions of transnationality, ‘home’ and identity amongst South Africans of Indian descent who have migrated to Australia. In 2019 she was awarded the prestigious UKZN Doctoral Scholarship based on her academic performance, and her current doctoral research. Subashini’s research interests include, transnationalism, diaspora, identity, home, ‘race’, culture and multicultural societies. Contact details: subashinigovender23@gmail.com

Kalpana Hiralal is a Professor in History in the School of Social Sciences at Howard College at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. Her PhD dissertation focused on the South Asian Diaspora to Africa in the context of settlement, trade and identity formation. Her recent books include, co-edited: Satyagraha, Passive Resistance and its Legacy (Manohar 2015), Global Hindu Diaspora Historical and Contemporary Perspectives (Manohar 2016); Pioneers of Satyagraha: Indian South African Defy Racist Laws, 1907-1914 (Navajivan, 2017), Gender, and Mobility: Borders, Bodies and Boundaries (Palgrave 2018). Contact details: hiralalk@ukzn.ac.za

Susan Lindholm is a Senior Lecturer in History at the School of History and Contemporary Studies, Södertörn University, Sweden. She has a PhD in History and History Didactics and her research interests include gender, migration and democratization processes, as well as constructions of self and other in different historical and locational contexts. She has an M.A. in American Cultural History from Ludwig Maximilians Universität, Munich, Germany. In 2016 she defended her doctoral dissertation Remembering Chile: An Entangled History of Hip-hop in-between Sweden and Chile. Contact details: susan.lindholm@sh.se

Gabisile Mkhize (PhD) lectures in the School of Social Sciences, specialising in Gender Studies, at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. She has a PhD in Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies from The Ohio State University, USA. Prior to her appointment at UKZN, she taught at Denison University and The Ohio State University, both in Ohio. Her publications and research interests include gender and development; gendered violence; identity politics; gender and disability; gender and tourism; intersectionality; postcolonial feminisms; critical black feminist thought and black studies. Contact details: mkhizeg2@ukzn.ac.za

Kathryn Pillay is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at the University of Kwa-Zulu-Natal (UKZN). She holds a PhD in Sociology from UKZN. Her areas of teaching and research include that of ‘race’, migration, identity and belonging. Her most recent publication is the co-edited volume, Relating Worlds of Racism – Dehumanisation, Belonging and the Normativity of European Whiteness (Palgrave Macmillan, 2019), which unmasks and foregrounds the ways in which notions of European whiteness have found form in a variety of global contexts that continue to sustain racism as an operational norm resulting in exclusion, violence, human rights violations, isolation and limited full citizenship for individuals who are not racialized as white. Contact details: pillaykat@ukzn.ac.za

Roine Viklund is a Senior Lecturer in History at Luleå University of Technology. He is a Swedish historian working in the field of History of Technology. Viklund received his PhD at Luleå University of Technology (LTU) in Sweden, where he still works. His research focus is Natural resource management from historical and regional perspectives, and has written extensively on Swedish railroad electrification, environmental permitting in the Swedish mining sector, and local conflicts regarding mining establishments in northern Sweden. Viklund has been a member of the Royal Academy of Sciences’ Swedish National Committee for History of Technology and Science 2011 – 2017, and a member of the National Humanities think-tank HUMTANK from 2015. Since 2014 he has been the International Coordinator for the Department of Business Administration, Technology and Social Sciences (ETS). In this position, Viklund has established and managed a number of international collaborations in Europe, North America and Africa. Contact details: roine.wiklund@ltu.se