

❧ Contributors ❧

Enola G. Aird, an activist mother and lawyer, is founder and president of Community Healing Network. CHN is leading the global grassroots movement for emotional emancipation to mobilize Black people across the Diaspora to heal from, and end, the trauma caused by the centuries-old lie of White superiority and Black inferiority. She is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Barnard College and earned her Juris Doctor degree from Yale University.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-1893-3872>

Email: egaird@gmail.com

Prof. Lesiba Baloyi is a registered and practicing clinical psychologist. He is currently Chief Clinical Psychologist and Head of Department of Clinical Psychology at Dr. George Mukhari Academic Hospital & Sefako Makgatho Health Sciences University. He has more than 23 years tertiary undergraduate and postgraduate teaching, research and supervising experience. He has designed and introduced the African Epistemology course in the M.A. Clinical Psychology programme at the University of South Africa (UNISA) in 2005, and continued to develop this course to a fully-fledged module currently taught in the MSc Clinical Psychology programme at Sefako Makgatho Health Sciences University. His publications focus primarily on African Epistemology and the transformation of the African psychology curriculum. He is one of the founding members and the past President of the Forum of African Psychology (FAP). He currently serves as the deputy chair of the Postgraduate Committee of Sefako Makgatho Health Sciences University.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-7564-2556>

Email: lesiba.baloyi@smu.ac.za

Prof. Zethu Cakata holds a PhD which she obtained from the University of South Africa. Among her fields of academic and research interest are African languages in Psychology, learning Psychology from IsiXhosa language, re-Africanisation of Psychology, and African epistemologies.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-6977-7008>

Email: zethu.cakata@gmail.com; cakatz@unisa.ac.za

Contributors

Taylor D. Duckett is a doctoral student in the Department of African American and African Diaspora Studies at Indiana University – Bloomington. Her research focuses on indigenous African spiritual systems, with an emphasis on Ifá, Vodun, and Candomblé. Additional areas of research include epistemology, ancestral memory, and Spirit based pedagogy from an African-centered framework.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-3862-6511>

Email: tdduckett@iu.edu

Prof. Chanté DeLoach (PhD) is an educator, scholar, and psychologist-healer. Her research centers on the intersections of community, culture, and trauma. Specifically, Dr. DeLoach explores culturally distinct understandings of and responses to trauma and culturally nuanced manifestations of resilience and resistance in populations of African and Latin ancestry. She has engaged in community work in numerous countries including Ethiopia, Zambia, Ecuador, Cuba, Mexico, Brazil, and Haiti to name a few. She continues to research and publish in the areas of family systems, community and liberation psychologies, and trauma. Dr. DeLoach currently serves as Professor of Clinical and Community Psychology at Santa Monica College. She is also the founder of Luminesce Psychological Services, p.c. where she provides liberation focused therapy primarily to people of African ancestry.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-8743-6573>

Email: deloach_chante@smc.edu

Roberta M. Federico holds a Master's degree in Psychology from the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Her research and areas of clinical interest incorporate race and spirituality and trauma and religious discrimination in school aged children. She also conducts research on youths, the social representations of their problems, and their strategies to deal with them.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-1328-2580>

Email: psi.rfederico@gmail.com

Patrick G. Frierson is a Graduate Research Assistant at the Psychology Applied Research Centre at Loyola Marymount University (PARC@LMU). He plans to earn his Ph.D. in Clinical-Community Psychology with research interests including mental health disparities and racial identity development amongst adolescents of colour.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-8427-2000>

Email: Patrick.Frierson@lmu.edu

Prof. Cheryl Grills is a Clinical Psychologist and national Past President of the Association of Black Psychologists. A tenured, Full Professor in Psychology at Loyola Marymount University, she also serves as the Director of their Psychology Applied Research Centre. Dr. Grills co-designed the Emotional Emancipation (EE) Circles and is the leader of the EE Circles Training Team.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-0999-1808>

Email: Cheryl.Grills@lmu.edu

Dr. Lawford L. Goddard is a sociologist/ demographer with over forty years' experience as a trainer/ educator in the areas of substance abuse prevention, HIV prevention, mental health service delivery, youth motivation and self-destructive behavior. Born in Trinidad, he is an expert on Black family dynamics, Black culture, youth development programs, substance abuse and HIV/AIDS education and prevention. He has served on the Board of The Association of Black Psychologists for the past ten years, as the National Convention Committee Chair. He was a founder of the Institute for the Advanced Study of Black Family Life and Culture in Oakland and is Lecturer Emeritus in the Department of Africana Studies, San Francisco State University. He is the co-author of four books and has twenty-four book chapters and journals articles.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-0956-8781>

Email: lawfordg@gmail.com

Dr. Huberta Jackson-Lowman is a Professor of Psychology and a past Chair of the Department of Psychology at Florida A&M University in Tallahassee, Florida where she teaches graduate and undergraduate students. A Fulbright-Hays Scholar and editor of the anthology Afrikan American Women: Living at the Crossroads of Race, Gender, Class and Culture (2014), her post-doctoral career spans nearly 40 years and has consisted of roles in both the private and public sectors. She is the Immediate Past President of the National Association of Black Psychologists. She is certified through the Association of Black Psychologists as a diplomate and fellow in Afrikan-centered psychology. Dr. Jackson-Lowman's research examines the effects of the intersectionality of race, gender, class, and culture on the health, mental health, and relationships of women of Afrikan ancestry and explores the use of cultural strategies in the socialization of Black youth. An emerging area of research, focuses on the use of cultural policy to reset standards and norms in troubled Black communities and aims at fostering a sense of agency and empowerment

Contributors

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-2933-6192>

Email: Huberta.jlo@gmail.com

Dr. Molebogeng Makobe-Rabothata is a registered Research Psychologist with the Health Professions Council of South Africa. She is also a member of the executive committee of Forum of African Psychology (FAP). Her work experience include consulting at Corporate, Academia and Public services. She is currently working for the Department of Defence under the Military Psychological Institute (MPI). Dr. Makobe-Rabothata completed her D. Litt et Phil (Consulting Psychology) at the University of South Africa, where she lectured in the Department of Psychology for fourteen (14) years. As part of her post-doctoral research, Dr Makobe-Rabothata is piloting Lekgotla as an African Indigenous method that could be applied in different working environments including the Military context.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-7948-9173>

Email: kalijamkr@gmail.com

Dr. Erica Mapule McInnis is Director and Principal Chartered Clinical Psychologist of the company she founded in the U.K., Nubia Wellness and Healing www.nubiawellnessandhealing.co.uk She is an active member of the Association of Black Psychologists (ABPsi) and developer of ‘Know Thy Self – Adinkra Cards’, an adjunct African Centred wellness tool for self-illumination and self-knowledge, using the best of African culture <https://bit.ly/2SSWTKm>. Her spirit was illuminated by African Psychology in 2010 and her soul has never looked back! Erica is a Black British of Jamaican parentage and is committed to the journey of African spiritedness and self-development. Black Minds Matter!

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-3631-535X>

Email: Erica.mcinnis@manchester.gov.uk

Prof. Nhlanhla Mkhize is the Deputy Vice-Chancellor and Head of the College of Humanities at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. He is the former Dean of the Faculty of Humanities, and former Dean and Head of the School of Psychology at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. He co-led the roll-out of the Certificate Course in Community Based Work with Children and youth, a joint initiative of REPSSI and the University of KwaZulu-Natal, which was implemented in 10 countries in the SADEC region. He is currently leading an integrated psychosocial intervention project to assist vulnerable communities to respond to the mental health and social implications of the COVID-19 pandemic in the KwaZulu-Natal province, South Africa. He holds a PhD in Psychology and has published articles and book chapters on various aspects of Afrikan Psychology, Afrikan Ethics, and the use of Afrikan Languages as a vehicle to transform higher education in South Africa. He is one of the founding members of the Forum of Afrikan Psychology and former President of the South African Humanities Deans' Association.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-0088-5780>

Email: Mkhize@ukzn.ac.za

Prof. Jabulani Mkhize is an associate professor in the Department of English and Comparative Literature at the University of Fort Hare, East London Campus. His research interest is in African and South African Literature.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-451-8598>

Email: JMkhize@ufh.ac.za

Dr. Patricia Nunley is an African-centered Child Development college professor at San Francisco City College and Educational Consultant who has taught in the USA for the past 20 years. Her students have included preschoolers, classroom teachers and administrators, incarcerated men and women, immigrants and refugees, LGBTQ identified, veterans, adult re-entry learners, and individuals needing learning supports. She identifies herself as a Healer that uses 'education for knowledge and transformation' as medicine to cure the deadly disease of ignorance. Following frequent travels to Southern Africa, she now claims South Africa as her 'Homeland'. She is currently the Western Region Representative for the Association of Black Psychologists and a Trauma Consultant for the Human Services Department in the City of Oakland, CA. USA.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-3437-8135>

Email: pnunley@ccsf.edu

Contributors

Dr. Vera L. Nobles has taught and served as a literacy coach in the public school system for over twenty-five years and is a former adjunct professor of Africana Studies at Berkeley City College, Berkeley, California. She is the author of ‘Nubia and Egypt: Is it Ella or is it a Copy?’ (1995); ‘Maroon Societies’ (2005), and ‘Ebonics: The Retention of African Tongues’ (2015), Dzongbe, The Spirit Dog: Seeing My Way in the World, a Sci-Fi historical drama for children and the co-author of, ‘The Whitening of a Black King Tut’ (2008), ‘Credo Mutwa’ (2009) and ‘Zarma’ (2009). Dr. Vera Nobles served as a Fulbright-Hayes Scholar to Brazil (2013-2014). She was initiated into the Ifá spiritual system in 2002. Her spirit name is Winmilawe. Credo Mutwa, the High Sanusi of South Africa named her Nokwanda (meaning mother to many). Along with her husband, Baba Dr. Wade Nobles, they have five children (Michael Chikuya, Omar Jahmal, Zetha Awura, Ayanna Yasmeeen and Halima Bisa) and thirteen grandchildren (Talia, Mikal, Kristofer, Donovan, Johnathan, Deborah, Maasai, Afolarin, Moremi, Folasade, Yasmeeen, Oni Chinyere and Zane Nicholas).

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-5174-3328>

Email: drvnobles@gmail.com

Baba Dr. Wade Ifágbemì Sàngódáre Nobles is Professor Emeritus in Africana Studies and Black Psychology at San Francisco State University; a founding member and past president (1994-95) of the Association of Black Psychologists and the founder and Executive Director (retired) of the Institute for the Advanced Study of Black Family, Life & Culture, Inc. in Oakland. Dr. Nobles’ professional career, as a teacher, researcher, academician and scholar/activist has been a consistent and formal engagement in the on-going theoretical and programmatic development and restoration of the African mind and world-wide liberation of African people. He is the author of over one hundred (100) articles, chapters, research reports and books; the co-author of the seminal article in Black Psychology, ‘Voodoo or IQ: An Introduction to African Psychology’ and the author of Seeking the Sakhú: Foundational Writings in African Psychology (2006), an anthology of over thirty years of African centered research and scholarship. His newest manuscript, The Island of Memes: Haiti’s Unfinished Revolution (2015) was described by Dr. Theophile Obenga as perhaps the most important book of the last five decades. Dr. Nobles has lectured in Ghana, South Africa, England, Haiti, Cuba and served as a visiting professor in Salvador de Bahia and Sao Paulo in Brazil. He was initiated into the Ifa spiritual system at Osogbo, Nigeria in 1992 and received the high honor of being enstooled as the Nkwasohene (Development Chief) of Akwasihoh-Kwahu Region of Ghana, West Africa in 1996. He and his wife, Dr. Vera L. Nobles have 5 children and thirteen grandchildren. Dr. Nobles currently serves as the chairperson of the ABPsi Pan African Black Psychology Global Initiative.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-8737-0001>

Email: drwnobles@gmail.com

Prof. Mogobe Ramose is an extraordinary Professor of Philosophy. He is attached to the Department of Clinical Psychology at Sefako Makgatho Health Sciences University. The focus of his work is Ubuntu, the Nguni/ Ngoni concept in which philosophy, ontology and ethics are thought together in a wholistic approach to human-ness. He has held many institutional affiliations in the course of his career. He has taught at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, the University of Zimbabwe, the Katholieke Universiteit Brabant, now renamed Tilburg University, the University of Venda, Addis Ababa University and the University of South Africa, where he was instrumental in introducing African Philosophy.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-3921-7613>

Email: proframose@outlook.com

Dr. Daryl M. Rowe is a licensed psychologist and Professor Emeritus of Psychology, Graduate School of Education and Psychology, Pepperdine University. He is a Past President of the Association of Black Psychologists and former National Chair of The African Psychology Institute, the training arm of the Association. He has written several journal articles and book chapters on a variety of topics related to psychological interventions and clinical training with persons of African ancestry, including African-centered theory, treatment and training, inter-ethnic and marital relations, cultural competence, and religious leadership and diversity; and has presented at professional organizations, nationally and internationally. As a psychotherapist and consultant, Dr. Rowe maintains a small private practice emphasizing the psychological and communal needs of persons of various cultural backgrounds, with special focus on marital and family relationships.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-8125-0401>

Email: darylrowephd@gmail.com; Daryl.rowe@pepperdine.edu

Contributors

Prof. Puleng Segalo (PhD, City University of New York) is a National Research Foundation (NRF) Y2-rated researcher currently holding the position of associate professor in the department of psychology at the University of South Africa. Prof Segalo specialises in Social and Community Psychology and Gender Studies and her research interests are in historical trauma and suffering, gender and sexuality, as well as Critical Participatory Action Research, critical feminist theories and narrative research approaches. She is passionate about and coordinates the Unisa decoloniality project. Prof Segalo has been recognised for her research with a number of awards and guest speaker invitations at national and international academic forums and in the popular media. She is the current president of the Forum of African Psychology.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-7724-5434/print>

Email: segalp@unisa.ac.za

Ms. Julia Simango obtained her MA in Psychology (Social and Psychological Research) from Wits University. She is currently working as a Lecturer at the University of South Africa. Her main areas of interest and expertise are research methods, indigenous research methods, African/ Black Psychology, Radical Black Feminism, and Decoloniality.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-2172-2208>

Email: simanj@unisa.ac.za

Dr. Derek Wilson is a provisional licensed Clinical Community psychologist in Houston Texas, specializing in African-Centered psychology. He has 16 years of teaching experience in HBCUs, Grambling State University and Prairie View A&M University. He has been featured on various local and national podcast shows and various national and international organizations. He is currently the Co-Chair of the Certification in African/ Black Psychology program for the Association of Black Psychologists. He is also the Director of Ubuntu Positive Mental Health Research, and Director of Integrative Behavioral Health Services. He has published research on Ubuntu: A Positive Mental Health model, for those of African descent, positive mental health and African-Centered therapeutic approaches. He believes that all mental health professionals should be culturally competent and work towards alleviating mental health disparities. He has over 25 years of practicing mental health in Oakland, CA., Tallahassee, FL., Chicago, IL., and Houston, TX. He received his B.A. from Morehouse College, M.S. from Florida A&M University, and Ph.D. from DePaul University.

ORCID iD: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-4405-2510>

Email: Afripsych@hotmail.com