

∞ Contributors ∞

Joseph R.A. Ayee is Professor and Deputy Vice Chancellor and Head, College of Humanities, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. He is the immediate past Dean, Faculty of Social Studies, University of Ghana, Legon. Joseph Ayee studied at the University of Ghana and The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel where he obtained the MPA and PhD respectively. He has published widely both nationally and internationally in the fields of political science and public administration and policy. He is a member of the Editorial Board of The Journal of Modern African Studies and a Fellow of the Ghana Academy of Arts and Sciences. His current research interests include collaborative governance, natural resource policy, tax administration and maritime reform. Contact Details: ayee@ukzn.ac.za

Gina Buijs is a social anthropologist, with research interests in gender, medical anthropology, development and religion. She has lectured at a number of universities in South Africa and has been a Visiting Fellow at the Institute for Gender Studies, University of Oxford. She is currently Academic Programme Manager, DHET-New Universities Project, University of the Witwatersrand. Contact Details: gina.buijs@wits.ac.za

Bilola Nicoline Fomunyam is a doctoral student in Anthropology, School of Social Science at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. She has tutored in Anthropology over the last several years. Her PhD project is based on the process of migration as a rite of passage among Senegalese migrants in Durban, South Africa. Her research interests are in the areas of transnational migration and the (re)negotiation of gender identities within a migration context. Contact Details: fomunyamnicoline@yahoo.com

Sakiemi Abbey Idoniboye-Obu is a Senior Lecturer in Political Science at Ignatius Ajuru University of Education, Port Harcourt, Nigeria and a doctoral candidate at the School of Social Sciences, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. His research areas include corruption in higher education, governance, political ethics, youth politics, and African political economy. Contact Details: Idoniboye-obuS@ukzn.ac.za

Christopher Isike, PhD researches and teaches African politics in the Department of Political Science and Public Administration, University of Zululand, South Africa where he is Acting Head. His research interests include gender, peace and development studies, migration studies, African politics and development, human factor and human security in development. Contact details: cisike@pan.uzulu.ac.za

Efe Isike is a Lecturer in the Department of Anthropology and Development Studies, University of Zululand, South Africa. She is a PhD in the School of Development Studies, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. Her research interests include policy and development studies, migration and development in Africa, rural development in Africa and gender-based violence. Contact details: eisike@pan.uzulu.ac.za

Detlev Krige is a Senior Lecturer in Anthropology in the Department of Anthropology and Archaeology at the University of Pretoria. He obtained his PhD from the University of the Witwatersrand where he held a Doctoral Fellowship at the Wits Institute for Social and Economic Research (WISER). He has taught anthropology at various universities in South Africa and is an Associate of the Human Economy Programme at the University of Pretoria. He specializes in Economic and Political Anthropology and has published on informal financial institutions and practices in urban South Africa. Contact details: detlev.krige@gmail.com

Janet Muthoni Muthuki has recently joined the University of KwaZulu-Natal as full time staff member, having held a post-doctoral position for the last few years at UKZN. She lectures in Gender Studies in the School of Social Science at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. Her interests are in transnationalism and gender, with a focus on how gender regimes are negotiated in transnational contexts. Contact Details: muthuki@ukzn.ac.za

Contributors

Victor Ngonidzashe Muzvidziwa is Professor in Anthropology in the School of Social Sciences UKZN. Victor Muzvidziwa holds a doctoral degree in Anthropology from the University of Waikato in New Zealand. He is well published in regional and international journals. He has a strong interest in migration, livelihoods, identity and leadership studies. He has held senior academic administrative appointments at the University of Zimbabwe and University of Swaziland. He is a former Pro Vice Chancellor – the equivalent of Deputy Vice Chancellor – of University of Zimbabwe, 2000-2009. Contact Details: Muzvidziwa@ukzn.ac.za

Francis B. Nyamnjoh is Professor of Social Anthropology at the University of Cape Town. He has taught Sociology, Anthropology and Communication Studies at universities in Cameroon and Botswana, and has researched and written extensively on Cameroon and Botswana, where he was awarded the ‘Senior Arts Researcher of the Year’ prize for 2003. He is a NRF B2 rated Professor and Researcher (2010), and a Fellow of the Cameroon Academy of Science since August 2011. Dr Nyamnjoh has published widely on globalisation, citizenship, media and the politics of identity in Africa. Contact details: francis.nyamnjoh@uct.ac.za

Maheshvari Naidu lectures in Anthropology in the School of Social Sciences, University of KwaZulu-Natal. Her research areas, influenced largely by her own feminist interests, are Feminist Anthropologies, Body Politic, Heritage and Identity, Anthropology of Religion, Transnationalised Religion/s, and Anthropologies of Tourism. She has also worked with immigrant Gujarati-speaking Hindu communities, looking at issues of transnationalised lives and aspects of transnationalised religion. She is widely published, both in regional and international journals. She is currently coordinating a large project in ‘Women’s Health Interventions’. Contact Details: naiduu@ukzn.ac.za

Thirusha Naidu is a clinical psychologist and lecturer in Behavioural Medicine at the Nelson R. Mandela School of Medicine at the University of

KwaZulu-Natal. Her research interests include Social and Cultural Psychology in relation to health, Psychotherapy and practitioner reflexivity. Her doctoral research involves identity, culture and context with HIV and AIDS home-based care volunteers. She is exploring an interest in alternative methods of representing research findings including poetry and narrative writing. Contact details: Naidut10@ukzn.ac.za

Winnie Ogana is a doctoral student in Anthropology at the University of KwaZulu-Natal (UKZN). She tutors in anthropology in the School of Social Science. She is currently working towards her doctoral thesis titled 'Food decisions and cultural perceptions of overweight and obesity: The case of isiZulu-speaking women in Durban, South Africa'. She is influenced by the works of feminists Amina Mama, bell hooks, Eleanor Preston-White, Sydney Mintz and A.T. Bryant. Contact details: Winnie.ogana@gmail.com

Vivian BESEM Ojong is a senior lecturer and Academic Leader for Culture in the School of Social Sciences, University of KwaZulu-Natal. Prior to this position, she was Academic Leader of Anthropology in the School of Anthropology, Gender and Historical Studies. She has researched and published extensively in her research areas, viz. African migration, transnationalism, gender and religion. Contact Details: ojong@ukzn.ac.za

Monica Njanjokuma Otu is currently pursuing her doctorate in Anthropology at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa, in the School of Social Sciences. She has also been involved in part-time lecturing for the undergraduate programme of Anthropology for over three years. She has a keen interest in invoking an African worldview in the area of knowledge production. Her research interests lie in the areas of endogenising/ indigenising knowledge production in Africa, African scholarship, the impact of African professional immigration into South Africa, transnationalism and transnational migration. Contact Details: monicanja@yahoo.com

Ndwakhulu Tshishonga is a Lecturer at the University of KwaZulu-Natal in the school of Built Environment & Development Studies. He holds a BA (Hons) in Development Studies (UNISA), and an MA in Applied Anthropology (Goldsmith College, University of London). His current research is on Intergenerational poverty, Inclusive and Exclusive Citizenship and Local Governance. Contact Details: Tshishonga@ukzn.ac.za

Contributors

Ufo Okeke Uzodike is Dean and Head, School of Social Sciences, College of Humanities, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. He is widely published in both regional and international journals. He is mentor and supervisor to a large cohort of doctoral students. He also serves as editor for two Journals: Affrika: Journal of Politics, Economics and Society; and Ubuntu: Journal of Conflict Transformation. Contact Details: uzodike@ukzn.ac.za

Ayo Whetho is a doctoral candidate at the School of Social Sciences, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. His research areas include international political economy, natural resource governance, conflict transformation, and African politics. Contact Details: WhethoA@ukzn.ac.za