

∞ Contributors ∞

Nyna Amin is a senior lecturer and university distinguished teacher at UKZN. She was the recipient of a Fulbright scholarship and currently teaches research discourses at postgraduate level. She has published papers in the fields of higher education, medical education, teacher education and gender. Email address: amin@ukzn.ac.za

Sarah Bansilal is an associate professor in the School of Education. She obtained her doctoral degree in mathematics education at the University of Curtin in Australia. She teaches pre-service mathematics students. Her research interest are conceptual development in mathematics and mathematical literacy and the professional development of teachers. Much of her research emanates from studies focused on her student's learning of mathematics concepts. Email address: BansilalS@ukzn.ac.za

Graham Barbour is an activist with Khanya College, Johannesburg. His previous appointment includes that of Lecturer in the School of Computer Science of UKZN. He focuses on Information Security, centred on practical penetration testing ('hacking') and security. Graham has published in universal algebra and algebraic logic, and he has developed many commercial and open source systems, including Principia, which is a system for writing syntactically and semantically valid mathematical documents. Email address: graham.barbour@khanyacollege.org.za

Laura Campbell is a specialist Family Physician with a PhD in curriculum studies. She currently supports Family Physicians in research at UKZN and is completing a large, multi-center report for the NRF on theories of African medical undergraduate education. She has published in quantitatively and qualitatively around palliative care, medical education and in Family Medicine. Email address: laura@hss.co.za

Contributors

Rubby Dhunpath is the current Director of Teaching and Learning at UKZN. His previous appointments include that of Teacher Educator at UKZN, Researcher at the Human Sciences Research Council and Rockefeller Post-doctoral Fellow at the University of Illinois. A former Research Fellow of the Sanpad and Spencer Foundations, he now provides leadership in various teaching and learning initiatives at UKZN, aimed at promoting scholarship in teaching and learning and institutional research. Rubby has researched and published in education & language policy, lifehistory research, organizational ethnographies and doctoral education. Email address: dhunpath@ukzn.ac.za

Yasmine Dominguez-Whitehead is a Lecturer in the Wits School of Education at the University of the Witwatersrand. She holds a PhD from the University of California, Santa Barbara. Her research interests lie in sociology of education, diversity in education, student experiences and social issues within higher education. In particular, her research focuses on institutional/organisational culture, higher education transformation, language/identity, and food politics. Email address: Yasmine.Dominguez-whitehead@wits.ac.za

Nadaraj Govender is a Senior Lecturer and current Cluster leader in Science and Technology Education in the School of Education, College of Humanities, UKZN. His research work is multi-disciplinary cutting across Physics Education, ICT-Science, IKS-Science and Culture. His research into cultural astronomy has led him to research how IKS and Science can be integrated into the pedagogy of classroom teaching and learning. Email: govondern37@ukzn.ac.za

Angela James is a senior lecturer in the School of Education, University of KwaZulu-Natal. She engages undergraduate and postgraduate students in Science Education – discipline content and research. Her pedagogy is informed by phronesis – problem-solving in authentic contexts where meaning is created and competence developed. Her research interests are: Research and Service-Learning for undergraduate students, inquiry-based teaching and learning in the Foundation Phase, professional development of teachers, environmental education and science and culture. Email address: jamesa1@ukzn.ac.za

C. Maria Keet is a Senior Lecturer with the Department of Computer Science, University of Cape Town, South Africa. Her previous appointments include Senior lecturer at the School of Computer Science, UKZN, Assistant Professor at the Free University of Bozen-Bolzano, Italy, and engineer at Eurologic Systems and Compaq, Ireland. Her main research focus is knowledge presentation and reasoning, and she has participated in European research projects and is PI of two South African projects. Maria has researched and published in ontologies, conceptual modelling, Semantic Web, and in peace studies, and is an NRF-rated researcher. Email address: mkeet@cs.uct.ac.za

Suriamurthee Maistry is an associate professor in the School of Education at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. He leads two main research projects. The first is a Textbook Research project that focusses on both school and university textbooks. The second is a Higher Education Curriculum and Pedagogy project that looks specifically at commercial subjects in higher education. He supervises both Masters and PhD students in these projects. Email address: maistrys@ukzn.ac.za

Moeniera Moosa is currently the Head of Teaching Experience and a lecturer at Wits School of Education. She has 15 years of experience as a teacher and school principal. She is currently a member of the UNESCO chair forum in Teacher Education for Diversity and Development, School of Education, University of the Witwatersrand. She holds a PhD from the University of Johannesburg. Her research interests are in aggression and bullying, psychology of education, initial teacher education and university support structures. Email address: moeniera.moosa@wits.ac.za

Dr Jayaluxmi Naidoo is currently the Head of the Mathematics Education Discipline at the University of KwaZulu-Natal (UKZN). A former recipient of the Sanpad and Canon Collins Educational Trust scholarship, she now provides supervision and support to undergraduate and postgraduate mathematics education students. Jaya has published numerous conference papers and journal articles both nationally and internationally. Her research interests include technology and mathematics education, social justice and mathematics education, teacher training and development. Jaya is the Capacity Building Member of the South African National Committee for the

Contributors

International Mathematical Union (SANCIMU). Email address: naidooj2@ukzn.ac.za

Nokukhanya Ngcobo is a lecturer in the School of Education in isiZulu Education at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. Nokukhanya teaches at the undergraduate and post-graduate levels. She supervises postgraduate students. She has been an isiZulu discipline co-ordinator for eight years. Nokukhanya's research interests include gender and language, HIV and AIDS, language policy, issues in literacy development, mother-tongue based bilingual education and multilingualism. Email address: Ngcobon13@ukzn.ac.za

Zinhle Primrose Nkosi is currently teaching isiZulu at UKZN in the School of Education (Edgewood Campus). She was appointed as a LEAP (Leadership and Equity Advancement Programme) lecturer in 2009, then into a permanent position in 2012. She is a former National Research Foundation (NRF) Scholar and a Graduate Scholarship recipient. Her research interests include reading, language and literature, mother tongue education, and language policy. She has published in the field of language policy and isiZulu reading research. She also supervises Honours, Masters, and PhD studies. Email address: nkosiz@ukzn.ac.za

Sibusiso Ntuli is currently teaching isiZulu at UKZN (Edgewood Campus) at undergraduate and postgraduate level. He is a member of UKZN isiZulu Terminology Development Committee. He is an alternate member of the UKZN Language Board. He is a member of the UKZN Naming Committee. He is a member of the KZN Provincial Geographical Naming Committee – a committee responsible for the standardization of Geographical names. He also represents KZN at the South African Geographical Names Council. He is part of researchers doing research of isiZulu clans' lineage. Email address: ntulis2@ukzn.ac.za

Ansurie Pillay is a graduate of the Universities of Durban-Westville and KwaZulu-Natal. She is currently Discipline Head of English Education in the School of Education, UKZN, where she teaches and supervises students. Her research interests include participatory action research, critical pedagogy and change agency, among others. She has been a high school teacher of English and Drama, and a documentary producer for the SABC and for NGOs. As a documentary producer, she won a Commonwealth Vision Award (London) for excellence in film-making. Email: Pillaya3@ukzn.ac.za

Daisy Pillay is a Senior Lecturer in Teacher Development Studies in the School of Education, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. She is a NRF Rated researcher. Her two publications on Higher Education research are: 'Postgraduate supervision practices in South African universities in the era of democracy and educational change 1994-2004' (Pillay & Balfour 2011) and 'New spaces for researching postgraduate Education research in South Africa' (Pillay & Karlsson 2013). She has served as an editor on the first ever South African special themed edition of Perspectives in Education (2014), 'Self-study of educational practice: Re-imagining our pedagogies'. She currently leads a book project titled, 'Inside Teaching in Higher Education: South African Academic Autoethnographies' and a Special themed edition for the Journal of Education, 'Academic Autoethnographies: Becoming and being a teacher in diverse higher education settings'. Email address: Pillaygv@ukzn.ac.za

Monwabisi Ralarala currently holds positions as Assoc Professor and Institutional Language Coordinator at the Cape Peninsula University of Technology's Fundani CHED; a Linguistic Human Rights Commissioner in South Africa, and a Canon Collins Educational and Legal Assistance Trust Scholar. He previously lectured at the University of Stellenbosch's Departments of African Languages for almost ten years. He holds a PhD in persuasion and compliance gaining in African Languages. His current research interests are quite diverse but follow three lines, that is, language rights, forensic linguistics and translation studies. Monwabisi has also published different articles in different journals and book chapters mainly about Forensic Linguistics and Translation Studies. Email address: ralaralam@cput.ac.za

Randhir Rawatlal is the current Head of Department of Chemical Engineering at UKZN. His major research and teaching areas include mathematical modelling in chemical reactor systems with specific interests in Chaos Theory and Artificial Intelligence. These two fields have naturally lead him to the field of engineering education with specific applications in development of intelligent (auto-) systems for the management of undergraduate students and development of curricula. Email address: rawatf1a1r@ukzn.ac.za

Contributors

Wendy Rawlinson is currently registered for a PhD in Teacher Development at the University of Kwa Zulu-Natal and is a Communication lecturer at the Durban University of Technology, South Africa where she teaches undergraduate students. As part of the Transformative Education/al Studies group and member of a symposium, she presented her work in progress at the American Educational Research Association (AERA) Conference in Vancouver, Canada in 2012. She has also presented her work at local conferences. Her research interests include the self-study of educational practice and arts based research. Email address: wendyr@dut.ac.za

Sibawu Siyepu is a Senior Lecturer in Mathematics at Cape Peninsula University of Technology's Fumdan's CHED. Apart from serving as Acting Head of Department at Student Learning, he works as a Mathematics support Lecturer. Before joining the university, he previously employed by the then Department of Education in the capacity of Principal, and has taught mathematics and science for 24 years. He also worked as a leader teacher for mathematics for 18 years. He holds PhD in Mathematics Education, and has presented research papers in recognised conferences and published research articles in accredited journals. He is a reviewer of many accredited journals, mainly in the area of Mathematics and Mathematics Education. Email address: siyepus@cput.ac.za

Zilungile Sosibo is a senior lecturer in the Further Education & Training (FET) Department in the Faculty of Education at Cape Peninsula University of Technology, Cape Town. She completed her M.Sc. Degree in Adult Education and Curriculum Studies, and her D.Ed Degree in Adult and Continuing Education in the School of Leadership Development at Northern Illinois University in Illinois State, USA. She has taught at Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana; UCLA and UWC. She is an active researcher in the areas of Assessment, Evaluation & Accountability in Education; Quality Management & Assurance in Education; and Diversity and Transformation in Education. She has served two terms as member of UMALUSI Council. She is currently serving on the CHE as member of Council. Email address: SosiboL@cput.ac.za

Michèle Stears is a Senior Research Associate at UKZN. Her previous appointments include that of Lecturer in Zoology at the University of Stellenbosch, Biology teacher, Teacher Educator in Biology and Natural Science and researcher in Science Education. Michèle has researched and published in various areas in Science Education, the most recent being in Environmental Education and Issues surrounding the teaching of Evolution in the Life Sciences. Email address: stearsm@ukzn.ac.za

Nicholas Wood is an associate professor in the Managerial Accounting and Finance discipline at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. He is also a Chartered Accountant (SA) and an Associate Chartered Management Accountant (ACMA) of the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA). His research interests include teaching and learning in accounting higher education as well as business valuations and corporate finance in general. He is currently completing his PhD which explores Managerial Accounting & Finance higher education pedagogy. Email address: woodn@ukzn.ac.za