

Contributors

Nyna Amin is a Fulbright Fellow and lecturer in the School of Education Studies at UKZN. She is involved in postgraduate education, specifically in the teaching of research modules. She has recently published her doctoral thesis, A Paradox of Knowing. Her writings are influenced, in the main, by the works of Ernesto Laclau, Giorgio Agamben, Michel Foucault, Antonio Gramsci and Slavoj Žižek. Contact details: Amin@ukzn.ac.za

Annah Bengesai is an Academic Development Officer in the Faculty of Engineering at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. Her research interests include language and literacy development and discourse analysis. Most recently, her work has focused on educational development for engineering students. This article is based on this work and explores the use of Supplemental Instruction as a tool for enhancing learning. Contact details: bengesai@ukzn.ac.za

Craig N. Blewett is a Senior Lecturer at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa, in the School of Information Systems & Technology. He has been involved in Higher Education for the past 20 years and has a keen interest in the convergence of educational theory and technological platforms. He is one of the founders of the NextEd programme, which seeks to facilitate the development of a worldwide virtual collaborative educational network. Web 2.0 environments will be used more and more for education in the future, therefore Craig is spending time engaging students in these virtual environments through a variety of avatars including Cee Beattie (Second Life) and klihk (twitter). Contact details: blewett@ukzn.ac.za

Victor Borden, Ph.D. is Professor of Educational Leadership and Policy Studies at Indiana University Bloomington. He has previously held senior administrative positions in institutional research at four U.S. public research universities. Dr. Borden's area of scholarship is on the assessment of organizational performance within higher education institutions, including focuses on student progress and performance; higher education accountability; diversity and equity; and support program evaluation. Contact details: vborden@indiana.edu

Contributors

Zahra Bulbulia is a Tutor for the School of Information Systems and Technology and has been involved in lecturing and coordinating IT courses from 2006-2011. She holds a Bachelor of commerce honours degree in Information Systems and Technology and is currently studying a masters degree in Information Systems and Technology. Contact details: bulbulia@ukzn.ac.za

Rubby Dhunpath (PhD) is a director in the UKZN Teaching and Learning Office and Chair of the UKZN Annual Teaching & Learning Conference. A former Research Fellow of the Sanpad, Spencer and Rockefeller Foundations, he now provides leadership in various teaching & learning and institutional research initiatives at UKZN, including the Teaching & Learning Competitive Research Grant and the Teaching Innovations and Quality Enhancement Grant. Rubby has researched and published in education policy, language policy, organizational ethnographies and higher education. He is an associate in the School of education where he teaches on the PhD in Higher Education programme. Contact details: dhunpath@ukzn.ac.za.

Diana H.J.M. Dolmans holds a MSc degree in Education Sciences and a PhD from Maastricht University. Her research focuses on the key success factors of innovative curricula within higher education in general and problem-based learning in specific. She is an associate professor at Maastricht University, Department of Educational Development & Research, School of Health Professions Education (SHE), the Netherlands. Contact details: d.dolmans@maastrichtuniversity.nl.

Callie (Callie) Grant is a Senior Lecturer in Education Leadership and Management in the Faculty of Education at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. She teaches on the Honours and Masters programmes in Education Leadership and Management. Her research interests focus on teacher leadership as one manifestation of a distributed leadership perspective as well as doctoral degrees by publication. Contact details: grantc@ukzn.ac.za

Mitchell Hughes is Lecturer in the School of Information Systems & Technology at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. His current research interests are Information Systems Education, and Information and Communication Technology and socio-economic development (ICT4D). His teaching focuses on Systems Analysis & Design, Database Design and Information Systems Research Methods. Contact details: hughesm1@ukzn.ac.za

Suriamurthee Moonsamy Maistry is the Head of the School of Social Sciences Education at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. His research interests are in the area of Critical Business Education as it relates to assessment, curriculum and pedagogy. Contact details: maistrys@ukzn.ac.za

Emmanuel Mfanafuthi Mgwashu is a Senior Lecturer who has served as Head of the School of Language, Literacies, Media and Drama Education at UKZN where he coordinates the B.Ed Hons., M.Ed and PhD programmes, and teaches and supervises postgraduate research in Applied Language Studies, Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages, Academic Literacies, and English Literary Studies. He has published in local and international journals. He is currently working on three research projects: creating conditions for indigenous languages to thrive and become Languages of Learning and Teaching in higher education (principal investigator); Early Childhood Development and Foundation Phase teacher education, focusing on multilingual education; and a National Research Foundation project on Social Inclusion and Exclusion in teaching and learning in Higher Education. Contact details: mgqwashue@ukzn.ac.za

Jabulani Mkhize obtained his PhD in English from the University of Natal in Pietermaritzburg. He is currently a senior lecturer at the University of Fort Hare, East London Campus. He is a member of the Editorial Committee of Alternation as well as one of the editorial associates of Journal of Literary Studies. Contact details: jmkhize@ufh.ac.za

Shane Moran received his doctorate from the Sussex University, authored the book Representing Bushmen: South Africa and the Origin of Language (Rochester, 2009), and teaches English literature at the University of Fort Hare. Contact details: SMoran@ufh.ac.za.

Contributors

Priya Narismulu is Professor of English Studies at UKZN and in 2011 served as the Acting Head of School and the Interim Co-ordinator of the new School of Arts, in addition to editing the journal and carrying all a full under- and postgraduate lecture load and supervision (never again). She has published and taught in the areas of the popular- democratic literature of the resistance against apartheid; the politics of English and questions of liberation/ race/ gender/ class/ masculinity/ sexuality/ HIV/AIDS/ postcolonial ecofeminism; subjectivity and postcolonial representation; discourse analysis and narrative inquiry; and written extensively about various adventures in university teaching and curriculum development. Contact details:

Vino Paideya's research interests are with academic support for first year Engineering and Chemistry students. My PhD explored first year Engineering students engagement with Supplemental Instruction which is an academic support programme targeted at high risk courses. I have published with respect to teaching and learning in first year chemistry. I am the Teaching and Learning Manager for Chemistry in the faculty of Science and Agriculture at the University of KwaZulu Natal. Contact details: paideya@ukzn.ac.za

Kriben Pillay is an Associate Professor in the Leadership Centre, University of KwaZulu-Natal, and is a writer across many genres, with his poems, short stories and plays appearing in South African and international anthologies. He is the editor of Noumenon, a journal focused on nondual perspectives of conscious and transformation. He has recently created two research performances on consciousness which premièred in the UK. In 2008 he was one of four UKZN academics selected for the prestigious Distinguished Teacher's Award. Contact details: pillaykri@ukzn.ac.za

C. Sue Price is a lecturer in the School of Information Systems and Technology. Sue's interest in multiple choice questions and assessment grew as a result of her involvement in two of the first year modules offered by the School. Her other research interests include software engineering and systems analysis and design. Contact details: pricec@ukzn.ac.za

Rosemary Quilling is a Senior Lecturer at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa (School of Information Systems & Technology). Rose enjoys working in the “in-between spaces”; enjoying interdisciplinary and collaborative projects. She has a keen interest in social computing platforms; specifically in Higher Education teaching and learning. Rose is one of the founders of the NextEd programme, currently focusing on connecting African faculty and students globally. She can also be located as RoseQ (www.twitter.com) and Resomyra Felwitch (Second Life virtual world). Contact details: quillingr@ukzn.ac.za

Ayub Sheik is an Associate Professor in English Studies in Education at UKZN. He was previously an Andrew Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow and a DAAD scholar at the University of Essen in Germany. His research preoccupations are diasporic narratives, multilingualism and literary theory in English pedagogy. Contact details: sheika@ukzn.ac.za

Veena S. Singaram trained as an anatomist and now specializing in health science education. She has a MMedSc (UKZN) and a PhD (Maastricht University, NL) on collaborative learning in diverse groups. She is an academic in the College of Health Sciences, UKZN. Her research and writing interests include student development and learning, PBL, collaborative group learning, academic coaching, mentorship and anatomical science education. Contact details: singaram@ukzn.ac.za

T. Edward Sommerville is an anaesthetist involved in education since 1997. Currently a member of the medical education entity at the medical school in Durban - lecturing in medical terminology, facilitating small-group learning, and training small-group facilitators. Researching the pedagogy of the problem-based medical curriculum, influences on student performance and problems with computer-based assessment. Has just submitted a PhD on PBL pedagogy. Contact details: sommer@ukzn.ac.za

Crain Soudien is formerly the Director of the School of Education at the University of Cape Town and currently Deputy Vice-Chancellor. He is a widely published sociologist and educationalist. He was educated at the Universities of Cape Town, South Africa and holds a PhD from the State University of New York at Buffalo. He is involved in a number of local, national and international social and cultural organisations and is the former Chairperson of the District Six Museum Foundation, former President of the World Council of Comparative Education Societies and was in 2008-2009 the Chair of a Ministerial Committee on Transformation in Higher Education. He is a Fellow of the International Academy of Education. Contact details: crain.soudien@uct.ac.za

Contributors

Vanessa Tang is a lecturer and researcher in the School of Economics and Finance at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. She teaches economics at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels. Her research includes the economics of education, time series analysis, international trade, comparative regional integration, special economic zones and the political economy of related policy-making in Africa. She has authored and co-authored several publications, including books, journals and refereed conference proceedings. Internationally, she is part of the project management team for the African Caribbean Pacific–European Union (ACP-EU) Network on Regional Integration Studies (NETRIS). Contact details: Tangv@ukzn.ac.za

Cees P.M. van der Vleuten, PhD, is Professor of Education, Chair of the Department of Educational Development and Research, Scientific Director of the School of Health Professions Education (SHE) at Maastricht University, Maastricht, The Netherlands. He holds honorary appointments in the University of Copenhagen (Denmark), King Saud University (Riyadh) and Radboud University (Nijmegen). Trained as a psychologist and a PhD in education he has specialized in medical education and research. He has published widely on topics as assessment and evaluation, problem-based learning and learning in the workplace. He has served as an education consultant worldwide and has received a number of academic and civil awards for work. A full CV can be found at www.fdg.unimaas.nl/educ/cees/cv. Contact details: c.vandervleuten@maastrichtuniversity.nl.

Patrick Kanyi Wamuyu (PhD IS&T, University of KwaZulu-Natal) is a Senior Lecturer at Daystar University, Nairobi Kenya, where he teaches Computing & Informatics. He has experience in Information Systems &

Technology Training, research and consulting. His experience includes design and delivery of Information Systems, application of wireless and mobile technologies, and research on the Web and the emerging technologies around it. He has published papers on ICT Entrepreneurship, ICT adoption and use in MSEs and ICTs in teaching and learning. Contact details: pkanyi@daystar.ac.ke